Privacy Policy of the World Day of Prayer Scottish Committee

The data which the Scottish Committee of the World Day of Prayer collects is used to effectively carry out our charitable activities. The data we currently hold is that which you have provided to us for the processing of your data as a legitimate interest in delivering our organizational objectives.

There are limited circumstances where we might share your personal data with a third party. This will only ever occur when we need to share your data with a supplier with whom we have contracted in order to deliver our best services, such as printing of Order of Service, Youth leaflets and any other information that the Scottish Committee for the World Day of Prayer needs to distribute throughout Scotland.

We will keep all personal data safe and secure when we work with the necessary third parties. Your continued support will be subject to our Data Protection Policy which sets out what data we collect, how we use it and what the legal basis for this is.

If you have concerns about our use of your data please contact us to discuss and if necessary for us to remove any offending Data from our registers.
